The Social Science Pathway

The Social Science Pathway is for students who enjoy the study of humans and societies. Students interested in the social sciences are generally concerned with the welfare of others and enjoy discovering and analyzing all aspects of societies. Strong social and interpersonal skills are often required of social science majors with an aptitude for speaking, writing and teaching. Because of the focus on people and societies, a degree in social sciences provides students with transferable skills that are applicable to a number of work settings in a wide range of careers.

Seattle Central Community College offers certificate programs in Deaf Interpreter Training, Chemical Dependency Specialist, and Child & Family Studies, and an Associate of Applied Science degree in Social and Human Services. Depending on articulated agreements, these programs may or may not transfer to a baccalaureate degree program.

For students interested in pursuing a bachelor's degree, complete the Associate of Arts transfer degree. Within the guidelines of the AA degree, take specific pre-requisite courses to meet program admission requirements. By completing the courses listed below, students should be well-prepared to apply to most universities in and out of Washington State.

Some social science programs are highly competitive, so we recommend applying to more than one college or university for admission. Be sure to check the admission and graduation requirements of your transfer university, as requirements often change or programs may require additional courses not offered at community colleges.
